3. Identity of Forces:

Company C 632d Tank Destroyer Battalion. Strength 5 Officers and 125 Enlisted Men.

James C. Sawyer, Capt., F.A., Commanding
 Denis J. Illige, 1st Lt., F.A., Executive Officer
 Norbert F. Peters, 1st Lt., F.A., 1st Platoon
 Virgil C. McElroy, 2nd Lt., F.A., 2nd Platoon
 Omar B. George, 2nd Lt., F.A., 3rd Platoon

4. Character of Hostile Opposition:

Enemy opposition from the beach to Pinamopoan was spasmodic, some sectors were heavily defended while in others there was no opposition. After turning South from Pinamopoan toward Ormoc opposition was exceptionally heavy with the enemy occupying excellent positions. Enemy raiding parties were active during entire campaign.

5. Summary of Lessons Learned:

Troops which we worked with knew very little about combined Infantry TD tactics. As a result of this our actions in many cases were not as effective as they could have been had there been a better understanding of this operation. By the nature of the terrain our actions consisted mainly of firing from the road. Due to the fact we had no terrain on which to deploy, there were very few lessons on tactics to be learned. The fact that the company was under fire a great deal and that the men know what it is like being under fire should prove of great value in future operations.

6. Special Data of Value:

The half-tracks proved exceptionally good vehicles for our purpose, their mobility was good and the armor gave excellent protection against snipers and light machine guns. The fire power of Half-Tracks with one 50 Cal and one 30 Cal Machine Gun proved adequate. The tracks which we have on M10s at present are deteriorating rapidly. The type of track which we have, when used with grouseers, is not as good as the rubber chevron or steel tracks which were used by M4 Tanks operating with us. It is recommended that either steel or chevron be made available. A Tank recovery vehicle which is authorized by T/S should be made available to each company. In many cases this vehicle would have speeded up repairs of broken tracks by several hours.

- b. _____ On 23 September the Company received 8 Half-Tracks and spent the day in care and cleaning of equipment.
- 24 September 1944 Company spent the day on care and cleaning and getting the M10's ready for firing.
- 25-26 September Company fired 3" guns in a 3 phase firing problem and fired 30 and 50 cal machine guns.
