Camp Hood Tex

TANK DESTROYER CENTER
CAMP HOOD, TEXAS

Hello dear sister

Well I'm back deep in the heart of Texas and everything is about the same with me & also the camp.

The weather here is not as warm as Mississippi but its plenty warm at that - Its Sunday down here and I just got back from church which by the way is held in the open air. You may have heard of open air theatres but I'll bet you never heard of open air churches.

I am stationed in the same barracks as I was in when I was with my old outfit - the 705 T.D. and how it reminds me of old times with all them swell fellows.

We came into Camp Hood as school troops and we expect to stay here for quite awhile to put on demonstrations and to teach new troops the training we had here. The place here is filled with men who have but four months or less service in the army and so many of them look like just young kids.

We have a few WACS here and you know they always help brighten up the place. You know they are now part of the Army and do they like it, for now they are WACS and not WAFPS. Anyway you spell it Sar - they are still nuts to me.

So Sis there isn't anything new to tell for it's the same camp with the same cities, Belton, Temple, Waco, Dallas Austin and a few others to go to.

Tell Plato he got the life -

Love to Nan Mom & Pop & Francis & the rest

So long Now.

P.S. I received your letter today from Camp Shelby - Don't forget Change of address.

So long I'm going to the movies & see Bing Crosby in "Dixie"
