601ST TANK DESTROYER BATTALION
APO #464 U. S. ARMY

SUBJECT: Reports of Operations for Period 1-30 April 1944

TO : Commanding General, Third Infantry Division, APO #3, U. S. Army

a. Summary of Our Operations:

Attached to the 34th Infantry Division in the CISTERNA sector of the Anzio Beachhead, the 601st Tank Destroyer Battalion, with one (1) Company, 701st Tank Destroyer Battalion and one (1) Company, 805th Tank Destroyer Battalion (towed 3" guns) attached, remained in defensive positions and covered two limited-objective infantry attacks against enemy armored counter-attack. The major activities of the Battalion were preparation and improvement of defensive positions, conducting forward observation on field artillery targets, and firing night harassing and interdictory fires from indirect positions. Night direct fire missions, supported by 60mm mortar parachute flares and 4.2 mortar smoke screens were conducted against enemy occupied houses and disabled tanks used as OP's and machine gun posts. Two Tank Destroyer crews have been training on two T-70 Tank Destroyers issued to this Battalion for experimental purposes.

Tabulation of friendly and enemy losses is contained in Annex #1.

Summary of our operations is contained in Annex #2.

b. Summary of Enemy Operations:

During this period the German employed his armor intermittently for harassing missions only. At no time were more than three tanks reported active on our battalion front. Under cover of darkness the enemy spasmodically moved tanks and self-propelled artillery into exposed positions from which he fired harassing fires into our infantry until our artillery counter-battery became too intense.

The enemy continued to utilize knocked-out tanks for observation posts and machine gun positions.

The German being well aware of the fact that we camouflage our armor behind houses has taken every opportunity to zero his guns on the corners of the houses behind which he suspects us to be in position so as to prevent us from pulling out and knocking out his armor. The fact that the enemy is obliged to shoot numerous rounds in order to become properly zeroed has also given away a few of his positions and teamwork (employment of three or four of our self-propelled guns on one or more targets at the same time) will prevent him from accomplishing his purpose.

c. Situation at End of Period:

"A" Company, 701st Tank Destroyer Battalion with one Section, "B" Company, 601st Tank Destroyer Battalion attached, in position on 133rd Infantry Regiment (right) front with "B" Company, 601st Tank Destroyer Battalion (-) in support position forward of the Canal. "B" Company, 805th Tank Destroyer Battalion (towed) with one Platoon, "A" Company, 601st Tank Destroyer Battalion attached, in position on 168th Infantry Regiment (left) front with "A" Company (-) in support positions forward of the Canal. One platoon, "B" Company in indirect firing position for night firing missions. "C" Company, 601st Tank Destroyer Battalion in reserve positions behind Canal as division counter-attacking force with 135th Infantry Regiment.

d. Status of Personnel and Materiel:

Morale of personnel remained on a rather low level due to long periods of inactivity. Successful attempts were made to improve these standards by showing of movies, CASERTA rest camp facilities for a limited number of men, and a regular system of rotation of Companies in positions.

Replacements for personnel rotated to the United States were received and generally considered high calibre men. This unit believes that an increase in rotation percentage of personnel would greatly improve morale and consequent efficiency.

Due to regular shifting of positions, equipment has been available for better and more regular maintenance and the condition of vehicles and guns is considered excellent.

e. Comments and Lessons Learned:

(1) One Platoon, Company "B", has been fitted with hinged armor-plate cover welded to the turret of M-10. Vision slits and cover capable of being thrown back preserves observation of crew members. Sand bags placed in front of driver and assistant driver has increased head-on protection. Remainder of M-10 turrets will be covered when more armor-plate is available.

(2) At least a 6 to 8 power magnifying direct fire telescope is needed on the M-10.

(3) A smoke generator should be available on each M-10.

(4) Use of "Tiny Tim" radio generator for each M-10 is heartily recommended due to radio drain on the M-10 motor.

(5) A sponson .30 calibre machine gun is needed on each M-10 to provide the crew with small arms security. The present .50 calibre machine gun mounted above the turret is not satisfactorily placed for this purpose.

(6) More protection from shell fragments is needed for the radiators of M-10's.
